THE PROTECTION AGAINST VIOLENCE ACT

Domestic violence is not a private matter. Physical, sexual and also psychological violence is always wrong and it is also punishable if it is committed within a family or relationship. The Protection Against Violence Act significantly strengthens the protection of the law for the victims of domestic violence, and it makes the perpetrators more accountable.

As a victim, you can

- apply for legal measures for the protection from violence and stalking
- assert claims so that an apartment you share is left to you.

The law applies to married and unmarried couples and to both female and male victims of domestic violence.

APPLICATIONS ACCORDING TO THE PROTECTION AGAINST VIOLENCE ACT can be filed at:

Local Court
Family Court
Office for legal applications
Tel. 0851 394-342, -345, -346

You can apply for protective orders and/or for the shared apartment to be left to you according to the Protection Against Violence Act in person at the office for legal applications. You can also have a lawyer file these applications for you.

POLICE

Every police station has an officer in charge of cases of domestic violence.

These officers offer:

- / immediate help in emergencies
- / support/registering complaints
